No part of this site may be reproduced, copied, or Q: Converting an excel document to a CSV file in python I am trying to convert an excel document to a CSV file. I am using Openpyxl library to do it. Below is my code and the error that I am getting from openpyxl import load_workbook from openpyxl import Workbook wb = load_workbook('C:\Users\Documents\testfile.xlsx') wb.save('C:\Users\Documents\testfile.csv') I keep getting this error: AttributeError: 'Workbook' object has no attribute 'save' I can't understand where I am going wrong A: The Save() method is defined in the Document Object of openpyxl. You can't access this method from your wb object. You could use the save_as() method, which is defined in the Workbook. Otherwise, it might be easier to use pandas. I would suggest checking it out. books.google.com - The spirit of the postwar in Southeastern Europe was one of enormous potential, but it was also one of surprising mediocrity.
